

2. "Podpisnie izdaniya": The bookshop

Atmospheric place where together with a new limited-edition-book or a fashionable English-language magazine, you can drink a cup of matcha or classic cappuccino

An alley near the Philharmonic

An area especially favoured by elderly and families. Encircled by museums, philharmonic and several streets, a square provides you with a plenty of variables for walking alone or in a company. A pleasant walk is often supplied with charming sounds of music from the philharmonic.

CONTINUATION: Naberezhnaya Reki Fontanki St.

This street also stretches in the heart of the city and is surrounded by old buildings with vintage shops and interesting cafes. It is by far one of the quietest streets in the centre, and its view is peaceful.

Despite all points of interest there is one more thing that makes me return to Saint-Petersburg every time. The street life of the city attracts many travellers. All the musician and poets bring the atmosphere of creativity and joy. The image of the Saint-Petersburg would not be complete without all those artists making spontaneous performances on the streets. In this picture you can see an old man playing tube next to the Church of spilled blood.
