Course Overview	In this course, we will study the basic skills required for writing an academic essay. Over the 12 sessions of the course, students will revise a single essay on a classic short story or poem from the Anglophone canon, developing the essay's basic thesis, the overall structure of its the argument, the introductory and concluding sections, and the incorporation of secondary sources, close reading of primary texts, and theoretical frameworks. Lectures will draw on student essays as examples for individual topics, and students will work on their essays together in groups during seminar sessions ("workshops"). The class will be conducted entirely in English.
Intended Learning Outcomes (ILO)	Students will become acquainted with and develop the basic skills required for writing an academic essay in English. By the end of the course, students will have produced a well-formed academic essay, examining a short story or poem from the Anglophone canon.

Indicative Assessment Methods and Strategy	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> • 25% Attendance, preparedness, and participation – Students are expected to attend all lectures and seminars. Each student is allowed one “sick or sad” day per module (no notification or excuse is necessary). Students will be expected to read assigned sections from various handbooks on academic writing and incorporate what they learn into their writing. During the seminars, students will present their works in progress and workshop each other’s essays. • 25% Midterm paper – 7-10 pg. (Times New Roman, 12 pt., double-spaced) An analysis of one of the assigned stories or poems, incorporating secondary sources. The midterm paper will form the basis for the work done during the third module. Due 30 December • 50% Final paper – 10-12 pg. (Times New Roman, 12 pt., double-spaced), A full revision and development of the midterm paper. Due 30 March
