

Giuliano Bonoli is Professor of social policy at the Swiss graduate school for public administration at the University of Lausanne. He received his PhD at the University of Kent at Canterbury for a study on pension reform in Europe. He has been involved in several national and international research projects on various aspects of social policy. His work has focused on pension reform, labour market and family policies, with particular attention paid to the politics of welfare state transformation. He has published some forty articles and chapters in edited books, as well as a few books. Among his key publications one can mention: Bonoli, G. (2013) The origins of active social policy. Active labour market policy and childcare in a comparative perspective, (Oxford, Oxford University Press), and Bonoli, G., & Liechti, F. (2018). Good intentions and Matthew effects: access biases in participation in active labour market policies. Journal of European Public Policy 25(6), 894-911.
