Course Description

This course is designed to introduce students to academic writing and its genres, features and conventions. Starting from general culture-specific and stylistic features of academic writing in English, students will work their way through the writing process, including prewriting research, drafting and revising, editing and proofreading, towards larger academic essays. The course will introduce the students to four major essay types, however, we will start at the sentence level, talk about academic grammar, lexis and syntax, after that we will study different types of paragraphs and their structure. We will master summarizing and reporting other peoples’ ideas and arguments before moving on to larger and more analytical types of writing. During the course, the students will be familiarized with theory of argumentation and develop basic research skills.

The course will utilize authentic, culturally enhancing and thought-provoking materials on a variety of topics.

The course will emphasize interactive teaching and learning practices that facilitate the development of both: overall communicative competence, critical thinking skills and specific skills for successful academic writing.

Prerequisites

33-50 points score on the placement test.
Learning Outcomes
Upon completion of this course, students should:

Attendance

Attendance is crucial to doing well in this course, that is why attendance is mandatory. In emergency situations, students should notify instructors in advance or at least before the missed class. To make up for missed classes students can request additional tasks, successful completion of which will not affect the attendance and participation grade. If a test class is missed, the students can write the test later only if agreed with the instructor before the beginning of the test class, otherwise the test cannot be written and the score for this test is 0.

In-Class Participation

It is absolutely necessary for students not only to be present in class, but to actively participate every time they attend. Students must prepare for in-class work in advance in order to be able to contribute to the discussion. In-class participation grade will include preparation for class (homework) and involvement in the discussion.

Writing Assignments

Throughout the course students will write several papers both in class and at home. The final writing assignments grade will be calculated as the mean of all the writing tasks grades.

Written home assignments should be submitted before the deadline set by the instructor. If submitted after the deadline, the paper will receive a grade 0.

Writing is assessed with the help of rubrics.

Test and Quizzes

Throughout the course students will do various language and theory tests and quizzes. The final grade will be calculated as the mean of all the tests and quizzes.

Cheating or suspected cheating of any kind during the tests will result in a grade 0.

Tests are graded in accordance with the number of correct answers.

| Grading Breakdown |
|-------------------|------------------|
| 10 excellent      | from 90 %        |
| 9                 | from 85 %        |
| 8                 | from 80 %        |
| 7 good            | from 75 %        |
| 6                 | from 70 %        |
| 5 satisfactory    | from 65 %        |
| 4                 | from 60 %        |
| 3 unsatisfactory  | from 50 %        |
| 2                 | from 45 %        |
| 1                 | from 40 %        |

Academic Integrity Policy

Cheating, plagiarism, and any other violations of academic ethics are not tolerated. The program academic supervisor and manager will be notified of such instances.
Mid-term and Final Exams

Students will be given mid-term and final exams at the end of Semester I and II respectively.

Mid-term exam will be organized as a writing assignment in class, comprising 1) test on writing conventions, academic style and language and 2) summary of the provided text.

Final exam will be organized as an in-class 1000-word essay on one of the topics related to class discussions throughout the year.
