CALL FOR PhD PROPOSALS

The PhD workshop of AMEC 2019 will be held on September'26-27 and is jointly organized by the St.Petersburg School of Economics and Management and the Center of Institutional Studies of HSE University. This event is focused on regional and comparative studies and seeks to bring together young researchers and distinguished scholars in the fields of applied economics, finance and management to discuss the most relevant contemporary research designs, approaches, and quantitative techniques. The emphasis of the workshop in 2019 is put on regional, institutional and cross-country comparative studies.

This pre-conference event is organized to equip doctoral students and future PhD candidates with new knowledge, profound expertise in the various fields of solid, data-led research. It gives an exclusive opportunity to improve own research in short period, to find collaborators, to interact with peers and to get feedback from leading scholars.

The programme of the PhD workshop comprises sessions delivered by leading international researchers, as well as group and individual work on PhD proposals with mentors. After the final presentation of the reviewed PhD proposals the best progress will be awarded and included in the main programme of AMEC 2019.

The workshop invites all current and future doctoral students to submit their research proposals for review and feedback. The research proposals should have a maximum length of 2000 words – with the following structure:

1. Introduction: motivation, problem statement, research question
2. Theoretical background of the research problem and literature review
3. Hypothesis, research design and methodology employed
4. Data description and pre-test analysis / Expected data
5. Empirical results and hypothesis testing / Expected results
6. Conclusions and discussions
