

MIKHAIL MATYSIN, PhD in Economy, Economist, Poverty and Equity Global Practice, World Bank

Mikhail has joined the Bank in 2012. Currently he works in the global unit supporting the microsimulation models in several countries cross the world to assess the distributional effect of various fiscal and social reforms. He used to work a research analyst in the Poverty unit for Europe and Central Asia region focusing on Russia, Belarus, Moldova and Ukraine. Mikhail holds a PhD degree from the Higher School of Economics in Moscow and a Masters degree from the New Economic School. His academic research was devoted to applied econometrics, measuring inequality and working with household surveys.