

LUDOVICA CHERCHI, Economist, Social Protection and Labor Global Practice, World Bank country office in Italy

She works with the World Bank Social Protection and Labour Global Practice in Italy, where she supports the Italian government on the implementation of the first nation-wide Guaranteed Minimum Income scheme. She has been acting as the project monitoring and evaluation focal point at the Ministry of Labour and Social Policies, supporting the implementation of the GMI monitoring strategy, and the design of the GMI impact evaluation. Prior to this role, Ludovica worked for the World Bank Africa Gender Innovation Lab in Uganda and Washington DC, working on impact evaluations on women economic empowerment projects. Prior to joining the World Bank, she worked for BRAC Research in Uganda, and for an Italian NGO in Kenya. Ludovica holds a Master degree in Economics from Bocconi University (Italy).